Solomon invites you to join us at OPEX MENA 2018.

Organizations often consider maintenance as just a necessary cost, yet a focused and competent maintenance strategy delivers significant value by ensuring assets operate reliably and are available to produce product in accordance with business needs.

This seminar explains the fundamentals of Reliability and Maintenance, and uses information from Solomon's RAM Study to:

- Quantify the value of leading performance
- Demonstrate that performance improvement is possible
- Explain how performance improvement can be achieved by focusing on reliability, both at asset level and also in terms of organisational culture

The seminar uses information and insights from the RAM Study to explain some of the characteristics of leading organisations, thereby providing attendees with specifications they can implement to deliver performance improvement.

This seminar will be of direct benefit to operators of refinery and petrochemicals assets, and of particular relevance to manufacturing managers, and reliability and maintenance professionals
